

Brookfield House,
Coolbawn,
Nenagh, Co. Tipperary, E45EY67.

Step into history with Brookfield House, a magnificent Georgian period residence dating from circa 1825, peacefully nestled just 400 metres from the picturesque shores of Lough Derg.

This distinguished property is a protected structure and proudly listed on the National Inventory of Architectural Heritage, reflecting its timeless elegance and architectural significance. Set within 3.1 hectares (7.6 acres) of stunning private grounds, the estate includes beautifully maintained stone-built outbuildings, a charming walled garden and orchard with many varieties of established apple trees, private lawns, woodland and a private paddock, offering a perfect blend of period character and rural tranquillity.

Adding to its unique appeal is a registered right-of-way to the lakeshore, providing access to Lough Derg—an idyllic setting for boating, fishing, or lakeside relaxation.

The residence boasts a classic three-bay, two-storey Georgian façade, featuring large timber sash windows that flood the interiors with natural light and a distinguished hall door with fanlight, epitomizing the grace and symmetry of Georgian architecture.
